Cold Store Operating Handbook

Northbrook Facilities Authority

Edition 4 - effective 01/01/2025

1. Scope

This handbook applies to every site run by the Northbrook Facilities Authority that receives, stores or dispatches temperature-controlled goods, and to every supplier delivering to those sites.

2. Receiving deliveries

Every chilled or frozen delivery must be checked at the bay before it is accepted. Staff take core readings from at least three cases, chosen from the front, middle and rear of the load.

Any delivery with a declared value above £1,000 needs two signatures from site staff before unloading starts. A driver's signature does not count towards the two.

A delivery may be refused if the trailer's temperature printout is missing or the logger shows a reset during the journey.

3. Equipment

Temperature probes are calibrated every 90 days by an approved provider. Trailer and store loggers must keep at least 30 days of readings.

Store doors must not stand open for longer than 4 minutes at a time; the door-open alarm sounds after that.

4. Temperature limits

Chilled goods

Chilled goods must be held at or below 5.0°C at all times, including in transit. A single reading between 5.0°C and 8.0°C is recorded and re-checked after 20 minutes. Any reading above 8.0°C means the goods are quarantined straight away and the quality lead decides whether to destroy them.

Chilled stock that has been quarantined may be released only by the quality lead, in writing.

Frozen goods

Frozen goods must be held at or below -18.0°C. A reading between -18.0°C and -15.0°C is allowed for up to 30 minutes during loading only. Any reading warmer than -15.0°C means the goods must not be refrozen and are quarantined.

Frozen stock that has been quarantined is destroyed unless the supplier collects it within 48 hours.
